SPECIAL ATTENTION!

FROM 10 TO 80 ACRES IN COLEGROVE

Will be sold at reasonable rates and on very easy terms.

Colegrove lies in the Cahuenga Valley, just five miles northwest of the Plaza in Los Angeles, and is therefore two miles from the city limits. It is about eleven or twelve miles from the ocean, which is in plain view. It is well elevated, commanding a bird's-eye view of the Pico street and Washington street country. The Los Angeles County Railroad (better known as the "Foothill line") crosses Colegrove, upon which will be located the principal depot of the section. The West End Dummy Railroad is near by. Two large hotels are now under construction, and several others will be built in the neighborhood. The upper portion of the Cahuenga Valley has long been celebrated for the production of early (winter) vegetables, frost being unknown. All varieties of fruits and vegetables are grown without irrigation. The fertility of the soil is remarkable, and the climate unequaled. Ocean and mountain views, and all that. Purest water at from six to twenty feet. Several springs on the 83 acres.

Will be sold at one-half to one-sixth of prices asked for adjoining property.

THAT CONFESSION.

Chief Darcy, Sergt. Jefferies and Others

Testify to Hattie Woolsteen's Admissions to Them.

Another Day in the Examination of the Great Case.

Some Curious Evidence—Mrs. Harlan Wanted—Detective Brady and His Written Statement—Sergt. Jefferies and Hon. S. H. White Disagree.

Yesterday morning, when the taking of testimony in the Harlan case was resumed, the prisoner and her counsel were on hand rather more promptly than has hitherto been the case, hoping the hearing would be concluded by night. The crowd was as large as ever, and at no time during the day was it possible for a person to leave the room, except during the recess, on account of the crush at the door and far out into the hall. At the opening of the court, was recalled, and, on his redirect examination, testified as follows: The Mr. Allen Hattie spoke of to me, and whom I allowed to see her while she was in my custody, was from Peoria, Ill., and, on that account, was permitted to see them. The poison taken by Hattie was taken on the Saturday on which she was arraigned in this court. She had been to the ladies' water-closet, and, on her return, she sat down in the office and said that her limbs were feeling numbed, and that she had taken an overdose of chloroform. After this, I ordered Minnie searched to discover whether she had any of the drug on her person. When Hattie asked me to take her out riding she assigned as a reason that she had a friend residing on the corner of Main and Jefferson streets, whom she wanted to see. On the night of making her confession to me Hattie told me the date and hour of Mrs. Barbey's death, and afterward I found a memorandum among her effects of the occurrence. That memorandum, which was written on a small card, I believe I handed to you [Mr. Dupuy] among other papers. [Witness is handed a bundle of papers by Mr. Dupuy, and is told to hunt it up, and does so.] This is the card, and on it is the exact date and time, as given me by Hattie Woolsteen, in relation to that death. It reads: "C. P. Barbey's death, Aug. 9, at 11:30, at 514 S. Fort street." I cannot state whether she told me she was residing at Compton at the time she went with Mrs. Barbey to get the coupon cashed or not. I never requested or pressed Hattie to take some liquor. At her request, I ordered some port wine, and she drank it.

CHIEF P. M. DARCY

Mr. Wells: Did I understand you to say you issued no order to prevent people seeing Hattie Woolsteen?

Witness: I don't remember whether I gave such an order or not. My memory might be a little defective on some points, but not on others. The complaint was filed on Saturday, but as I did not file it I cannot state what time it was filed. She was arraigned at about 4 o'clock on that day. The writ of habeas corpus was served on me on Saturday, but I don't remember what time. Hattie wanted me to go out with her to the corner of Main and Jefferson streets. I did not request her to ride with me. This request was made after we had eaten our breakfast at the Poodle Dog restaurant. I took her into custody on Tuesday or Wednesday, and it was on the following day that Hattie asked me to take her out riding. I did not go, because I was told by her sister that she would take my pistol and attempt to kill herself with it. We ate at the Poodle Dog restaurant because it was a quiet place. The girls might have asked for liquor, and if they did I got it for them and paid for it. I think they did ask for cocktails, and they got them. I do not remember that Hattie threw hers on the floor, nor did I order her another one if she did, for one is enough for her at a time. I may also have got one myself, and did, but whether they drank theirs or not I do not remember.

To Mr. Dupuy: I was present when Mr. Allen called at the police station. I stood at the door of the room and introduced him to the girls. He was in there alone. I did refuse to allow Minnie to go into her sister's room after the poison had been taken, but it was at the request of the doctors. Minnie was in the room part of the time after the poison had been taken, and behaved so wild that the doctors told me to have her removed. I did so, and she was taken to the next room. If I refused to allow her in the room after that, it was at the request of the doctors.

Mr. Brady was then called for, but having been sent out on the street for some purpose, the next witness was called, who was

and who on being sworn testified: I am a police officer in this city. I know Hattie Woolsteen. The first time I saw her was in the Chief's office on October 13th at 9 o'clock p.m. I had no conversation with her then. I saw her more or less every day she was there, but had no conversation with her until the 14th, when I talked with her in relation to the death of Dr. Harlan. I told her that I was confident that she was either the person who had killed Harlan or that she knew who had committed the crime. Well, she then told me that on the night of the 6th she got a note from Harlan stating that he would call on her on the following evening. This he did, and they went out for a walk and he presently suggested that they should have a ride. As they went over to Chick's stable there were two men standing in the hallway of the stable and the Doctor told her he didn't want to see them, and for her to go after the buggy. This she did, and they had a most enjoyable ride until as they were returning home the Doctor got to talking about going to Denver. They had by that time been all around by Washington Gardens and had reached where Eighth street would be if it was cut through. Here he said that if she would not go with him to Denver he would take care that he or she should die, and pulled a pistol out of his pants' pocket. She said she begged him not to kill her, and that a struggle ensued over the pistol, which presently went off, and the ball entered Harlan's head. She said she watched him die. It took ten minutes by his watch, which she had taken from his pocket. Then, as he had dropped the lines as he fell over on her, she got them again, and, hearing no person around, drove off toward Compton. She said there was but little blood, as the Doctor's head had got swelled around where the ball went in, and so she kept his head on her shoulder until reaching Compton, where she put him in the barn and set fire to the place with some matches she found in his pockets. She then drove back to her room on Fort street, and, taking the harness off the horse, let him stand there until morning. She then got up and, taking a sponge, washed off the buggy where there were any blood or brain marks. She said there were but a few drops of blood, and they had dripped down the back of the seat. I asked her why he committed suicide, and she said he did it in self-defense. At one time she said she had got hold of the pistol in the struggle and had shot him, and another time that he had done it himself. I cannot state how long we were engaged in this conversation. She also told me that she had buried the pistol and revolver—I mean the watch and pistol, in a gr that she had not talked to any person and that Darcy had told her not to tell any person what she had confessed to him. I was there to take care of the ladies and not to act as a detective. I talked to her about the many cases there were of circumstantial evidence and that her case looked very bad against her. I gave her an envelope on which my name had been written by my wife, I think, as I had none of my cards with me. She told me, also, that she had been out riding with Harlan on the day before the shooting.

Cross-examined by Mr. White: I presume I had other conversations with her at other times, and know I had one with her on Sunday morning, when she came and told me that she was innocent. This was after she had taken the poison, and she seemed to express it with great feeling. She thought I was her friend because I had done all I could to give her that idea, and was as sincere in it as possible. Of course, as I told her that I would befriend her as much as I could outside of my profession as an officer, I done so. My object was to get a statement of facts if I could do so, but I honestly meant what I said in relation to being her friend, as she had no other in the city. I always treat a prisoner as well as it is possible to treat him, and I did the same with these girls. I was ordered to attend them by Chief Darcy and Sergt. Jeffries, and fulfilled my instructions. After they had got the trunks and other articles they told me that I was to hold Hattie, but to let Minnie go if she wanted to. It was on Thursday morning at 1 o'clock that I was put in charge of them and told to remain there in the room with them. It is not usual to put a man in with every prisoner that is arrested. I don't know why they did so in this instance. I was there Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday and part of Sunday. There were some doctors there on the 15th, but I am confident that no one else saw them at that time. I did not know of Chief Darcy cursing or abusing or using any bad language toward the girls. There they were, locked up, with no complaint filed against them, and I was doing all I could for them as a friend. I told her the stories about the circumstantial evidence as a friendly warning that she was in a tight place. You can call it queer consolatory stories if you please. That is why I told her about the Chinaman being hung in Chicago for having committed a murder, and then its being afterward discovered that he had nothing to do with it. I wanted to explain her position to her, and thought that the best means to do so. After she told me that Harlan had committed suicide we had a little further conversation. It was not until after she had taken the poison that she told me she was innocent of murdering him. She told me that she had told Chief Darcy about Harlan having committed suicide, and that he had told her not to tell anyother person of it. When I went into their room Minnie was crying, and said she had been accused of poisoning her sister. The Chief ordered me to search Minnie, and I said "all right," but did not do so. I told her she might go if she wanted to, and when Officer Roberts, who was in the office at the time, asked me if she could pass, I told him yes, the Chief had said for her to go if she wanted to. I refused to search Minnie and I did not. I don't mean to say that I told Chief Darcy I would not do it, but I did not search her, as we had arrested her on her way from the theater, or soon after she had left the theater, and I did not see there was any necessity for it. I did not remove her dress, or any part of her clothes. I was asked by the Chief if I had searched her, and, when I told him I had not, he asked me why I did not do as he had told me. I then told him there was no necessity for such a thing. It is hard to state what we found in the trunks, as there were so many articles of ladies' wearing apparel that I cannot remember what there was there. Darcy, Fletcher, Jeffries, myself, and perhaps Mr. Brady, were there at the time we searched the trunks. I saw Chief Darcy take a photograph of Minnie and Hattie, but I don't know whether it is the same as Minnie gave him or not. I don't know who Brady is, or whether he is an officer or not. I came here from Omaha about two months ago. I was there in the employ of the Union Pacific Railroad Company, and had charge of a gang of men to handle their iron and coal. Before that I worked at Pullman, for the Pullman Car Company, where I had charge of all the streets, the dairy farm and 2500 acres of land for the company. I was appointed to that position after serving on the police force there. I have been an officer in Chicago and at Battle Creek, Mich. I was suspended from the police force here last week, but whether it was for my connection with this case or not I cannot say, as there were no charges filed against me. I was suspended by the Police Commissioners.

Mr. White: I would like to ask Mr. Darcy a few questions here if your Honor please to have him sent for. I want to ask them right now, if possible. [Darcy is sent for.] Mr. Darcy, can you tell me on what day of the week it was that you stated that Hattie Woolsteen had told you she had shot Harlan?

Mr. Darcy: On Thursday.

Mr. White: It was when you were out together to get the watch and pistol?

Mr. Darcy: Yes, sir.

M. W. BRADY

was the next witness called, and he being sworn testified: I have been a resident of this city for about two months. I am now employed in doing special work for the city. As a detective, yes sir. I know Hattie Woolsteen, and saw her in the office of the Chief of Police on Monday, October 12th, of this year. We had a conversation in relation to the death of Harlan in the presence of Chief Darcy. I heard her conversation with the Chief, rather, and took her statement down in writing. I did not write exactly as she gave it, but took it down from her lips as she gave it with the exception of some of the minor words of no consequence.

Mr. Dupuy: State what was said by all parties then. What Chief Darcy said, what you said and what the defendant said. [Objected to by the defense.]

Mr. Wells: The statement, if it is in writing, is the best evidence.

Mr. White: Did you write all that she said then, or a part of it from a subsequent conversation?

Witness: I wrote all she then said.

Mr. White: Then we demand the written statement.

Mr. Dupuy: I have the statement in my possession, but if the Court pleases I think the witness might have it with which to refresh his memory, but not to have it read out, as it does not contain all the statements made by the defendant, and is therefore at the best but a memorandum of a part of what was said by her. [Objection overruled.

Witness: I gave the statement to you and marked it before I gave it to you. I wrote my name on the back of every sheet on which it is written. That, is the statement. [Reads statement]. "Hattie Woolsteen at Chief's office, 9 o'clock a.m., Oct. 12, 1887.

"First statement: My name is Hattie Woolsteen. I am rooming with my sister at No. 514 South Fort street. I have known Dr. Harlan since January last, and the first time I met him was in his office at No. 23 South Spring street. I went in to have a tooth pulled and he did the work. A short time after that, I and my sister went to his office and I had other work done. Since that time myself and Dr. Harlan got to be quite well acquainted. I have been riding with him several times. The last time I went riding with him was on October 5th. We left Harlan's office at about noon that day and went from this city direct to Whittier. Then to Compton. We did not get out of the buggy only once, and that was at Stevens' ranch, where we stayed about half an hour and got some fruit, grapes, figs and apples. We went to the Barbey place, but drove around that and did not get out of the buggy. Went from there to Compton and left Compton at 7 o'clock that evening for Los Angeles, and arrived at the stable at 9:30 o'clock. The Doctor then walked home with me, and left me at the gate of my house. That was the last I saw of him until 7 o'clock on the evening of the 6th. He called on me about 7 that evening, and left about 7:30, as he said he had some very important business to attend to, and had to go, and so he left. He then looked as though he was troubled about something, and that is the last time I saw him. I went out to visit Mrs. Barbey at her ranch, this side of Compton, last June. I staid there seven days. Dr. Harlan called on me once while I was stopping there. I never saw Dr. Harlan before last January. I did not know he was married, nor do I believe he is yet. While I was working at Mr. Bradley's he used to visit me quite often. He asked me to quit work and he would help me out. So I thanked him very kindly, and told him I did not want any assistance from any one. I quit work last June, and myself and sister have been living together ever since. I never received any money from Dr. Harlan. I had about $60 worth of work done by him, and paid him for it. My sister Minnie had about $35 worth of work done and paid him. I never was in any private room with Dr. Harlan. He promised to marry me, but the day was not set. My home is seven miles east of Peoria, Ill. My father and mother are both living on a ranch in poor circumstances. We left home in last December and went to St. Louis and worked out a short time in a private family. We then went to Kansas City, Mo., and there worked out. My sister was with me all the time there. We left Kansas City and came here last January, and have been here ever since. I never represented to Harlan that I had any money. He well knew my circumstances."

M. W. BRADY:

That is the statement I wrote at her dictation. I afterward asked her farther about the Barbey place, and one time she told me she had been there for ten days, and at other times said she had been there but seven days. The balance of the conversation was on general matters and had no relation to the case. I saw her again on the evening of the 12th, and asked her for a picture of Dr. Harlan. That was at her room. She said she had no such picture. Her sister was there then and said that she supposed the detectives would be after her next. Minnie then went off to the theater. The change in the date of that paper is mine. I did not make it until four or five days after I wrote the paper, as I did not find out the mistake I had made in the date until that time. It was written before Hattie attempted to take poison. It was written on the day after I went to Compton to take up the remains. It was written as Hattie dictated it, and is almost word for word. I mean to say that I took it down as fast as she spoke, and she talked about as fast as we are now talking.

Here Mr. White called for paper and pencil, and tried the witness, on his rapidity with the Faber, but the witness made a most dismal failure, and caused himself to be well laughed at by reporters, audience, counsel and prisoner.

Witness resumed in answer to Mr. White's questions: I was in Portland, Or., before I came here. I was at Tacoma, Wash., before I went to Portland. I was running into Tacoma. I might also have run out of that place, as I was railroading as a conductor and brakeman. I was brakeman first and conductor after. I was there about four months. Before that I worked in the Montana Division of the road, and was a brakeman there. Before that I was running out of Butte on the Northern Pacific. Previous to my working at Butte, I was engaged in the service of the Southern Pacific at Tuscon. I ran from Tuscon, Ariz., to Deming, N. M. I was a conductor there on that road. It was on a mixed train, not a passenger, all the time. I was discharged from that position for being in a collision. It was not for any other reason. I have been under restraint of the officers of the law. That was in Arizona. I forget the date of my arrest, but it was about two years ago. I was arrested for conspiracy, and for no other reason. I quit the company then. You can call it a discharge, or anything else you like. I did not go back for my money, at any rate. I am now in the employ of the city, doing detective work. I was not appointed by any one of the Commissioners, as I applied for the position, and got it. I am paid by the city. You needn't fear, I am safe as regards my money. Yes, it is guaranteed by Chief Darcey, or, at least, whenever I have needed money I have gone to him and got $20, or $30, or $50, or what I wanted.

Mr. Dupuy announced that he understood that the court docket was crowded with other cases which it was necessary to dispose of, and suggested that a recess be taken until this morning. Justice Austin stated that he would have to be there late at night anyway, but would be obliged if the counsel would take a recess until this morning. Court could be reopened at 9 o'clock instead of 9:30, as usual, and so some time might be saved. Mr. Wells then stated that in that event he would like to know whether there had been any return made on the subpœna he had caused to be issued for Mrs. Harlan, and stated that he understood that that lady had left for the East. Mr. Dupuy said he had heard on Tuesday night that Mrs. Harlan had gone East to attend to an estate in response to a telegram from her brother, and had verified his information. Mr. Wells said that it was likely that he would want to put Mrs. Harlan on the stand for the defense, and if she had left the city he might require to have her deposition taken under the rule provided by the statutes. Mr. White here said that he would want to put a few witnesses on the stand to disprove the statement made by the witness Jeffries in relation to his [Mr. White's] visit to the station about the writ of habeas corpus, but afterward said he would wait until this morning.

A recess was then declared until 9 o'clock this morning.

For a Sanitarium

No spot in the country offers so many natural advantages as that sightly bench of land in the Duarte commonly known as the

"GEARY RANCH."

There is here found a rare combination of those sanative conditions indispensable to the successful treatment of throat and lung affections. The location is absolutely above the extreme fog limits. The chill of night and early morning hours is tempered by radiated warmth from the mountains that tower behind in close proximity. The heat of day is moderated by the natural conditions insured by an elevated and exposed situation. The magnificent mountains in the rear afford an effectual barrier against north winds, and from their deep ravines an abundant supply of pure spring water is obtained. A background of rugged mountains, a broad expanse of fertile valley below, with a strip of ocean shimmering beyond, combine to form scenery at once grand and beautiful in its diversified loveliness. The site is within a half hour's drive from the railroad station and over an excellent road of easy grade, by groves and vineyards and through a pretty live oak canyon in which not a trace of sand-wash is visible.

This valuable property, comprising in all 140 acres, will be sold as a whole, or a site for a sanitarium or mountain hotel. Can be secured on very advantageous terms, providing the parties will erect thereon buildings of a certain value.

HASTY HENRY.

HE MARRIES, MARRIES, MONETIZES AND MEANDERS.

How an Aged Widow Loved and Lost —Her Boy Hubby Decamps With Her Good Coin — His Capture at Last.

Detective Clements of Constable Martin Aguirre's office has succeeded in capturing a slick operator whose name is Henry Eichenbery. Some eight months since he came to Los Angeles, and made himself quite popular with the men about town. He did not show his hand during the first few months of his residence, and no one suspected him of being a crook. He was evidently playing for big game, and did not attempt to rob any of his companions, except in a quiet way at the poker table. He made a great many inquiries about rich widows, and seemed to be anxious to become acquainted with as many as possible. After a while he met a widow who was old enough to be his mother. The old lady was supposed to be very wealthy, and young Henry was with her as often as she would allow him to call. He was an adept in love-making, and the old lady was finally led to believe that he was really in love with her. He noted his advantage, and pushed his suit so vigorously that she consented to become his for life, although her better judgment should have told her that she was playing with fire. Her friends and relatives got wind of what was going on, and did all in their power to convince her that she was too old and infirm to tamper with love affairs, especially as she was the party of the second part; but their good advice went for naught, as she had thoroughly made up her mind to become a young man's darling. One bright morning in midsummer she appeared at the sacred altar and blushed a real maidenly blush as she waited for the good priest to make two hearts beat as one, etc. She was decked out in orange flowers and all the "fixin's" that go to make up a tender bride. The gay confidence man was dressed according to the latest agony—he probably borrowed the outfit from some gambler—and when the priest looked from one face to the other and hesitated a moment, the old lady asked that the ceremony be rushed through as rapidly as possible. They were soon married, and the bridegroom was anxious to skip over to Europe on a wedding trip, but the bride soon sized up her newly-made "hubbie's" pile and saw that she would have to foot the bills, so she concluded to do the honeymoon act in Los Angeles. Henry objected, but the old lady was firm and he had to make the best of a bad bargain, but he made up his mind to get even, and he did, for a time. He spent his better half's money right and left and one day she discovered that he had robbed her of $200. She took him to task and gave him a very lengthy curtain lecture, but he kissed her in a most affectionate manner and she forgave him. During the next two or three weeks the bridegroom behaved himself and the old lady was beginning to think she had captured a gem in her old age, but her dreams of bliss were shortlived, for the confidence man couldn't remain honest, however hard he might try. He disappeared one day, and with him $200 of hubby No. 1's. hard-earned cash. This was too much for the aged bride, so she swore out a complaint charging her boy hubby with robbery. The complaint was put in the hands of Clements, and he has been on the lookout for the young man ever since. When Henry left the city he made his way east, and had a big time seeing the world. A few days ago he returned to California, and took up his quarters in San Bernardino. As soon as Clements learned of his whereabouts he took the train for that place, and, night before last, he walked into Henry's room and placed the young man under arrest. Clements returned to this city with his prisoner last evening and lodged him in the County Jail. Clements is positive that he has a good case, unless the old lady falls in love with her husband again and refuses to prosecute him.

POLICE COMMISSIONERS.

Various Matters Acted On at Yesterday's Meeting.

At a meeting of the Police Commissioners held yesterday there was present a full board, viz., W. H. Workman, Mayor and chairman: L. N. Breed, President of the Council, and P. M. Darcy, Chief of Police.

Meeting was called to order at 2:30 o'clock p.m. and the following business transacted:

Minutes read and approved. Permits for saloon licenses were granted to Seifield & McKee, 727 South Spring street; Emil Fauer & Co., 215 Commercial street, and Bates & Bonner, 113 North Los Angeles street.

On motion, C. S. Murphy was appointed special officer in place of Regular Officer R. E. Lee, suspended.

On motion, C. R. Moffet was appointed special officer in place of Regular Officer G. B. Fuch, suspended, and the said C. R. Moffet was ordered to act as police clerk.

On motion, it was ordered that a bill indorsed by the commissioners be drawn each month for the payment of detectives.

The police clerk was instructed to see ex-Chief of Police Skinner in regard to the matter of the reward of ex-Officer Fred Smith for the capture of W. P. Meller and request a written statement from the ex-Chief.

James B. Gill, representing the Los Angeles District Patrol Company, came before the commissioners and asked to be allowed to put up a number of their patrol boxes to show the workings of their system. He was given permission to put up four boxes at points designated by the Chief of Police, provided that in so doing he did not violate any city ordinance.

Applications for positions on the force were received from Frank H. Lemon and Nelson Carr and ordered placed on file. Adjourned.

A New Deal.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Los Angeles Real Estate and Stock Exchange was held at the board room on Tuesday evening, November 1st. Messrs. J. S. Van Doren, A. Willhartitz, Charles Victor Hall, George A. Wilbur and D. B. Macquarrie were elected the board of directors for the ensuing year. The board organized by the election of officers as follows: J. S. Van Doren, president, D. B. Macquarrie, vice-president; H. G. Shaw, secretary; and the First National Bank of Los Angeles, treasurer. Committee on finance: Messrs. D. B. Macquarrie, A. Willhartitz and Charles Victor Hall. Committee on arbitration: J. W. Green, T. J. Matlock, H. N. Elliott, O. H. Violet and L. Thorne. The growth of the exchange has been rapid for so young an organization. The stock has increased from $20 to $200 per share and the utmost harmony prevails among the brokers. The new president, Mr. Van Doren, delivered a stirring address upon taking the chair in the exchange at yesterday morning's session.

Another Prohibition Lecturer.

Mrs. Mary T. Lathrap, W.C.T.U. State president of Michigan, who has been speaking in behalf of the constitutional amendment in Oregon, and who is now on her way to the National W.C.T.U. Convention at Nashville, writes that she will be here on the 5th. She has been engaged to speak to the Los Angeles public Sunday night. Mrs. Lathrap's eloquence as a public speaker and her earnestness in the temperance work have given her a national reputation. She is regarded as one of the most gifted speakers in the organization.

Bad Best.

Yesterday United States Deputy Marshal Hayes returned from San Bernardino, where he went to raid a gang that has been selling whisky to Indians. He succeeded in catching Thomas Best, who is a very old man. Best was taken before Judge Ross and pleaded not guilty. He was placed under $100 bail for his appearance for trial this morning at 10 o'clock.

Changed Its Mind.

A few days ago the Southern Pacific Railroad Company of Kentucky, brought suit against J. G. Nichols et als. to get the possession of a fine tract of land in the Ca- were made and the defendants were ordered to appear before the United States Court and make answer. Yesterday the Kentucky company changed its mind evidently, for it suddenly ordered the case dismissed and offered to pay the costs. The order was carried out.

Undelivered Telegrams.

There are undelivered telegrams at the Western Union Telegraph Office for Mrs. S. H. Parsons, R. K. Wood, Mrs. A. Wood, Ugenio Montreal, Shiesk & Frederick, Richard O'Neill, J. H. Hamer, A. J. Armstrong, Mrs. A. H. Breckenfeld, O. F. Hunt, Frank Mourse, S. G. Parker, Ben L. Bear, J. B. Tomlinson, A. M. Upton.

A Handsome Gift.

J. S. Slauson yesterday donated three entire business blocks to the town of Azusa for park, school and church purposes. They are among the most desirable sites in the city, and, if sold at the schedule prices, are worth $16,000.

The Duarte Hotel.

The new hotel at Duarte is rapidly approaching completion. It is a handsome two-story frame structure, containing forty rooms, and will be quite an attractive acquisition to the town.

Important to Tax-Payers.

The beautiful Schumacher tract, lying on the south side of Pico street about 1060 feet this side of terminus of the electric road, has been recently sold to a syndicate who are now offering the same in lots at low prices, $300 and upwards, on easy terms. This tract, on account of its proximity to the center of the city, being only thirty minutes' ride from First street, on a car line already constructed and running, not promised in the dim future, its five-cent fares, its high elevation, its fine mountain views, its surety of increase in values, being in the course of the natural growth of the city, and above all, its being already a center, with a postoffice station located and a church soon to be built, offers more inducements to investors than any in the market today, a fact recognized by one of our shrewdest real-estate men, who on first sight secured a block. Free carriage or free tickets on the electric road will be furnished to any one desirous of purchasing.

BRADSHAW & ZELLNER,
Room 23, 33 South Spring street.

An Opportunity Seldom Offered.

The Santa Fe Railroad Company are largely interested in the new town of Santa Fe Springs, at Fulton Wells. Consequently, all the projected improvements will be rapidly pushed until completed. This is the only resort within seventy miles of Los Angeles where first-class medicinal springs are found. It will, therefore, always be filled with health-seekers. The enterprising firm of Byram & Poindexter have secured 200 acres immediately adjoining the best side of this town of Santa Fe Springs, and will sell no town lots at all. They offer it only in blocks of from four to ten acres, at low acre prices, on easy terms. This gives buyers an opportunity to make handsome villa homes or small farms, just beside a railroad depot, handsome new hotel and other extensive improvements. Any purchaser of his property can double his money by subdividing into lots. Call on us for maps and further particulars. Byram & Poindexter, 27 West First street, Los Angeles.

Removal.

O. P. & J. E. Hayes have removed their office from 29½ South Spring street to 124 West First street, where they can better accommodate their customers. Parties having city lots or other property for sale will do well to leave their list with them, where it will be disposed of in short order. Respectfully, O. P. & J. E. Hayes, 124 West First street.

Some Facts About Southern California.

We read in the Boston Evening Record:

"LOOK OUT FOR THE SLUMP.

"In almost every suburban town around Boston parties are being made up of people who are going to Southern California, there to spend the winter or to settle permanently. To those who are going simply for a visit the Record has nothing to say, except that it wishes them a rattling good time. But to those who are selling out their property here in the East with the hope of making a fortune in California real estate within a year after they reach that latitude, the Record offers the advice to "go slow." Southern California may be the most perfect garden on earth, but the way things have been going there for the past three years is pretty good evidence that the slump is coming before long, and we hope that our New England people are not the ones to be caught the worst in it.

"To the people going to California this winter for the purpose of settling, the Record suggests that they do not sell out in the East before they start, but go out there and spend a few months and then possibly they will be glad that they did not throw in all their property there at the start."

The above advice, from the Boston Evening Record, is intended as a note of warning for the home-seeker who is turning his face in the direction of Southern California. The writer shows his good sense in not decrying the climate of this region, knowing that the experience of those who have come here would not bear him out in any attempt to underrate its excellence. He also exhibits the doubt that naturally arises in the minds of those who are unacquainted with the peculiar condition of things which have created the "boom" in this section, and which tend to make of it a permanent and healthy growth, but he jumps at a pretty wide conclusion when he says: "The way things have been going there for the past three years is pretty good evidence that the slump is coming before long." The writer is drawing his conclusions from false premises, and is reasoning from some imaginary standpoint, probably is drawing his inferences from what the result would be if the activity in real estate prevailing here existed in Massachusetts. Doubtless then his predictions would prove well founded, and the "slump" would not delay its coming. But the difference in climatic conditions, fertility of soil and rich productiveness between the Old Bay State and the Golden State of the Pacific is almost as wide as the poles, while in materials to foster a "boom" and to nurse it into a healthful and permanent growth, we are as much ahead of Massachusetts as the present age of telegraph and steam is ahead of the old slow-going days of mail coaches and canal boats.

A better acquaintance with Southern California would convince the journalistic prophet of the Record that there is method and not madness "in the way things have been going here for the past two or three years." This "going" of things is based, first, upon the climatic excellence of this section. People from the East who have come here are charmed with the exemption which they have found from the extremes of heat and of cold. They are delighted with a temperature which is universally comfortable; with the equibility of the climate, the variations between its summer and winter temperature, averaging less than fifteen degrees. They are charmed with the continuous growth which makes of every month a harvest month. The productiveness of the soil is a matter of surprise to them, for in the soil of Southern California the productions of almost every zone are successfully grown. It is no unusual thing to see fruits and plants from the tropics flourishing beside the hardier growths of the temperate zones, nor is it an exceptional occurrence for a farmer to realize a return of $1000 from a single acre of fruit or farm. All of these things are considerations which will tend to ward off the "slump" and keep things going "the way they have been going the past three years." Another consideration which will militate against the "slump" is the large amount of capital which has accumulated here, and which is coupled with public-spirited enterprise and unhesitating faith in the future of Southern California. Nineteen millions of dollars in Eastern banks, and a no less amount in our local banks, is subject to the check or order of the people located in Los Angeles and immediate vicinity alone. This wealth is not brought here to be idle. It will be vested in improvements, in manufactures, in business, and in various ways that will tend to keep "things going on as they have been, for the last three years," only with an increased ratio of prosperity. All the while capital and population, the things most necessary to a continued healthy growth, are flowing in. The demand for real estate is constantly increasing; people are seeking for homes away from climatic discomforts, from the frosts and the snows of the East; seeking to escape the cyclones, the cold, the floods and the droughts of the country upon the other side of the Rockies; turning from the barren soils of New England, the sultry summers of the South and Middle States, from the wide wind-swept prairies of the great Northwest to this semi-tropic calm and sunshine, to the land of monthly harvests and plenty. Those who have come do not anticipate any "slump."

Again, the resources of this section are inexhaustible. It is rich in mineral wealth and all materials necessary to the various manufacturing industries. There is scarcely a limit to the manufacturing industries which may be built up in our midst.

Los Angeles also occupies a commercial vantage ground, and is the great distributing depot for the adjacent States and Territories. Her fruit and wine interests are attracting the attention of the world. Already her market for these is as wide as civilization. Her transportation facilities have wonderfully increased with the coming of another transcontinental line of railroad. In her citrus fruits she can successfully compete with Florida, Havana, and the ports of the Mediterranean. Her wines have found their way to the tables of luxury all over the continent. Her olive orchards cannot supply the demand for their fruits and their oil. Her raisin trade is growing, and in a few years it will be able to meet the demands of the markets of the whole country. This does not look as though the "slump" is coming before long.

Other grounds for the rapid growth and prosperity of Southern California might be mentioned, but those numerated are perhaps sufficient.

The advice of the Boston Record, not to sell out in the East before starting to California, might be good advice in some cases. Unless a man has means or some profession or trade upon which he can depend for support, it is not more advisable to come to Southern California upon uncertainties than to any other strange place, merely for the sake of speculation, yet there is here abundant room for investment, at not unreasonable rates, when everything is taken into consideration. There is also a demand for good sturdy, honest labor in almost every direction. No one need to fear starving here who is willing to work, and a livelihood can be gained here with less fatigue and physical discomfort than in any other climate in the world. Southern California is the paradise of the working man, and the land to be desired by every class. There will be no decrease of immigration in this direction, and no rapid decline in its prosperity. That predicted "slump" will materialize only in the journalistic brain of the Boston Record.

Under Which King, Bezonian?

A correspondent who is as deeply interested in the welfare of the laboring element as he is in the welfare of the community, writes us relative to the idiotic circular recently issued in the name of the carpenters of Los Angeles, and to which yesterday's TIMES made reference.

In further proof of the utter lewdness of lying indulged in by the carpenter's misrepresentative, we quote the following from our correspondent's letter:

"I rented some weeks ago a small unfinished cottage to be occupied by my brother-in-law and his family, now on the way to this city. The house was to be delivered to me when finished, and it could have been finished two weeks ago but for the scarcity of mechanics. It is not yet finished."

No good man can reside in a community without developing the sentiment of local pride or patriotism; and a man who is incapable of such development is a natural-born pariah—useless to himself and a parasite upon the well doing of his fellows.

Throughout the world the mechanics, as a class, are regarded as the most intelligent, conservative and patriotic portion of the labor element; and in this regard the mechanics of Los Angeles may certainly rank with the best.

If this is true, why should the carpenters of this city permit some lying loafer to hold them up to the world as a body of men who subscribe to and circulate a document that bears within itself all the evidences of knavery, falsehood and fraud, and that not only proves them to be traitors to the community in which they live, but traitors to their fellow craftsmen in other States and other lands. The lying circular issued in the name of the Los Angeles Union of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners does one of two things, and it remains with the brotherhood to elect which. It proves them to be utterly devoid of truth, honor and local patriotism, or it proves that some one or more of their number have, through ignorance or otherwise, put a stain upon their character as men and citizens, and an insult upon their union as a craft organization.

It is now in order for Union 56 to take this matter up and to manfully declare before the public that they are responsible for the circular, or that they repudiate it. Under which king, Bezonian?

AMUSEMENTS.

RANCHE 10 was given its first presentation last night by the Osbourne & Stockwell Company. The plot is of the woolliest western character, and "the razors they go flying through the air," generally with innocuous effect. The central action of the plot turns upon the absolute likeness of twin brothers and their heartfelt efforts to die for one another, at once and all together, as never in life, but ever in the melodrama. The clouds roll by in five-act meter, and the true ones are united unscathed by sorrows that would crush a pile-driver and untouched by woes that would furrow old Time himself. Frank Mordant, who has already shown himself an excellent and versatile stock man, has in the character of the big, hearty doctor of the plains, full of wise saws and big words, a role most congenial and satisfactory and receives deserved applause. Stockwell, as "Judge, Particular Prose," a sublime "Gov'ment Offishal," has a wide field for his circumambient smile and is delightfully and leerfully funny. Hattie Moore, as the long-tongued virgin from Massachusetts, takes good care of her part and of her pretty and woe-begone niece, "Ethel Brandon." George Osbourne, as the twins, is somewhat disappointing. The part is one of such dead-level morality, nobility and unreality that it palls upon anything but an angelic taste. Mr. Osbourne's strongest virtue is in his ability to portray a man noble indeed but, as with the sex generally—only by spells. Mr. Osbourne's opportunity, The Golden Giant, will very sensibly be repeated by the management.

A Drunken Weaver Kills His Wife and Children.

Twenty-Two Bodies Recovered from the Ill-Fated Vernon.

The Woman Who Insulted Mrs. Cleveland Released.

Interesting News from the Crow War—An Appeal from Powderly—Jeff Davis' Health—Woman's Suffrage Convention—The Cattle Growers.

By Telegraph to The Times.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 2.—[By the Associated Press.] John Hodel, a silk-weaver, living at Hebron, shot his wife last night, and then set fire to the house. Two children were burned. Hodel fled, but is now under arrest. Hodel had been on a spree for about a week, and, when himself, was a quiet, good-natured fellow, but drink made him crazy. He tells the following story: "Last night I told my wife I was going to kill myself. She said she wanted to die, too. An agreement was then made that the whole family die together—two boys, aged 3 and 6, and the mother, who expected to be confined again in a month. During the night I brought the two children from an adjoining room and placed them in bed with the mother and set fire to the bed; but the smothering process was too slow, so I got a shotgun and fired both barrels into my wife's breast, killing her instantly. The flames then spread soon and smothered both children. I then went down stairs, tapped on the window of the lower tenement bedroom and called them to come in and see what I had done." It is said Hodel thought certain neighbors were too familiar with his wife; that he accused her, and this caused a quarrel. Hence the agreement to kill off the family.

THE VERNON WRECK.

Twenty-two Bodies Found, but Only a Few Identified.

TWO RIVERS (Wis.), Nov. 2.—The bodies of nineteen victims of the Vernon disaster were brought into port by harbor tugs today. The bodies were found about eight miles east of Two Rivers. Five were floating together, and the others were scattered, but not far distant. Capt. Thorpe's watch stopped at 5:55, and it was undoubtedly at this hour Saturday morning that the propeller went to the bottom.

MILWAUKEE (Wis.), Nov. 2.—Five fishing tugs went out from Two Rivers, Wis., today and brought back the bodies of seventeen men and two women, who had been aboard the foundered propeller Vernon, making twenty-two bodies that have been recovered. The engine-house at Two Rivers was turned into a morgue, where the remains were stretched side by side to enable identification by relatives and friends. Only seven of the bodies were identified, which are as follows: George Thorpe of Ogdensburg, N. Y., captain of the Vernon; John Sullivan of Chicago, first mate; Larry Higgins of Chicago, second mate; Martin Lebeau of Chicago, steward; Henry Lebeau of Chicago, porter; Fred Burk of Chicago, clerk; Coy Hazelton of Chicago, cabin boy; E. B. Borland of Milwaukee, a passenger.

In the pockets of the coat worn by one of the unidentified was a letter postmarked Port Washington and addressed to Adolph Hazelbarth, Milwaukee. There is nothing about the others that will enable identification unless viewed by acquaintances. Several are undoubtedly deck-hands picked up at various ports. The bodies were found about eight miles east of Two Rivers. Five were floating together and the others were scattered, but not far distant. A bunch of letters was found on the body of Capt. Thorpe, but they will not be opened till the inquest. His watch was stopped at 5:55, and it was undoubtedly at this hour Saturday morning that the propeller went to the bottom.

THE CROW WAR.

Council of Sioux Warriors—Chief Gall Talks Heap Much.

BISMARCK (Dak.), Nov. 2.—[By the Associated Press.] A council was held by Sioux chiefs today at Standing Rock, to discuss the Land Severalty Bill. Several chiefs expressed a friendly feeling for the whites, but Gall, one of the most influential, said he would talk differently. He had not always been friendly to the whites. He fought them and tried to kill them. The whites and Crows fought him at the Custer battle and tried to kill him, but now he is ready to take his men and help the whites in settling the trouble with the Crows. He should like to show the whites his friendly feeling. Gall then turned to Maj. McLaughlin, Indian agent of Standing Rock, and expressed the utmost confidence in him and friendship toward the whites. Gall was frequently interrupted by the applause of his followers, who constitute a majority of the young warriors. Sitting Bull had nothing to say. He is very jealous of Gall's power, and, it is said, was displeased with his speech, as he fears it will give him additional prominence with the whites.

The deputation itself can scarcely have failed to discover that the President's language contained a covert rebuke to their too sanguine hopes.

DOOMED TO DIE.

No Hope from the Courts for the Anarchists.

Full Text of the Decision of the Supreme Court.

The Governor of Illinois Now Has Their Fate in His Hands.

No Surprise Manifested by Chicago Jail Authorities, and the Prisoners Take Their Medicine Quietly—Gov. Oglesby Visited by Ladies for the Prisoners.

By Telegraph to The Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—[By the Associated Press.] The decision of the United States Supreme Court upon the petition for a writ of error in the case of the Chicago Anarchists was announced this afternoon by Chief Justice Waite, in a long and carefully-prepared opinion, which occupied thirty-five minutes in reading. The Court holds in brief.

First—That the first ten amendments to the constitution are limitations upon Federal and not upon State action.

Second—That the jury law of Illinois is upon its face valid and constitutional.

Third—That it does not appear in the record that upon the evidence the trial court should have declared Juror Sanford incompetent.

Fourth—That the object to the admission of the Johann Most letter and the cross-examination of Spies, which counsel for prisoners maintained virtually compelled them to testify against themselves, were not objected to in the trial court, and that therefore no foundation was laid for the exercise of this course of jurisdiction.

Fifth—That the questions raised by Gen. Butler in the case of Spies and Fielden upon the basis of their foreign nationality, were neither raised nor decided in the State courts, and therefore cannot be considered here.

TEXT OF THE DECISION.

The Chief Justice, after making the customary formal announcement of the case, said: "When, as in this case, application is made to us on the suggestion of one of our own number, to whom a similar application had been previously addressed, for the allowance of a writ of error to the highest court of a State, under section 709 Revised Statutes, it is our duty to ascertain not only whether any question reviewable here was made and decided in the proper court below, but whether it is of a character to justify us in bringing the judgment here for re-examination. In our opinion a writ ought not be allowed by a court if it appears from the face of the record that the decision of a federal question which is complained of was so plainly right as not to require argument, and especially if it is in accordance with our own well-considered judgment in similar cases. When, under our rule, a motion to affirm is united with one to dismiss for want of jurisdiction, the practice has been to grant the motion to affirm, when the question on which our jurisdiction depends was so manifestly decided right that the case ought not to be held for further argument. Adopting a similar rule upon motions in court for the allowance of a writ is apparent, for certainly we would not be justified as a court in sending out a writ to bring up for review a judgment of the highest court of a State, when it is apparent on the face of the record that it would be our duty to grant a motion to affirm as soon as it was made in proper form. In the present case we have had the benefit of argument in support of the application, and while counsel have not deemed it their duty to go fully into the merits of the question involved, they have shown us distinctly what the decisions were of which they complain, and how the questions arose. In this way we are able to determine, as a court in session, whether the errors alleged are such as to justify us in bringing the case here for review. The particular provisions of the Constitution of the United States on which counsel rely are found in Articles 4, 6 and 14 of the amendments. That the first ten articles of the Fourteenth Amendment were not intended to limit the power of a State government in respect to their own citizens, but to operate on the National Government alone, was decided more than half a century ago, and that decision has been steadily adhered to since. It was contended, however, in the argument, that 'though originally the first ten amendments were adopted as a limitation on federal power, yet in so far as they secure and recognize the fundamental rights of man, they make them the privileges and immunities of a man as a citizen of the United States, and cannot now be abridged by the State under the Fourteenth Amendment.' It is also contended that the provision of the Fourteenth Amendment, which declares that no State shall deprive "any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law," implies that every person charged with crime in a State shall be entitled to a trial by an impartial jury, and shall not be compelled to testify against himself. The objections are in brief.

"First—That the statute of the State, as construed by the court, deprive the petitioners of trial by an impartial jury.

"Second—That Spies was compelled to give evidence against himself.

"Complaint is made that the trial court, acting under this statute and in accordance with its requirements, compelled the petitioners, against their will, to submit to trial by a jury that was not impartial, and thus deprived them of one of the fundamental rights which they had, as citizens of the United States, under the National Constitution, and if the sentence of the Court is carried into execution they will be deprived of their lives 'without due process of law.' We are therefore confined in this case to the rulings on the challenges to jurors who actually sat on the trial. Of these there were but two. Theodore Denker and H. E. Sanford, the latter being called and sworn after all the peremptory challenges of defendants had been exhausted. At the trial the Court construed the statute to mean that although a juror called as a juryman may have formed an opinion based upon rumor or upon newspaper statements, but has expressed no opinion as to the truth of the newspaper statements, he is still qualified as a juror if he states he can fairly and impartially render a verdict thereon in accordance with the law and evidence, and the Court shall be satisfied with the truth of such statements. It is not a test question whether a juror will have an opinion which he has formed from newspapers changed by the evidence, but whether his verdict will be based only upon an account which may here be given by witnesses under oath. The rule of the statute in Illinois, as it was construed by the trial court, is not materially different from that which has been adopted by courts in many of the States without legislative action.

"Without pursuing this subject further, it is sufficient to say that we agree with the Supreme Court of Illinois in the opinion that the statute on its face, as construed by that Court, is not repugnant to Section 2, Article 2, of the Constitution of that State, which guarantees to the accused party in every criminal prosecution, a speedy trial by an impartial jury of the county or district in which the offense is alleged to have been committed. As this is substantially the provisions of the Constitution of the United States, on which petitioner's now rely, it follows that even if their position to the operation and effect of that Constitution is correct, the statute is not open to the objection which is made against it."

The Court then reviewed fully the proceedings of the State Court in the examination of Jurors Denker and Sanford, and sustained the rulings of Judge Gary in the matter.

IN REGARD TO SPIES.

The Court then stated: "We come now to the consideration of the point that defendant Spies was compelled by the Court to be a witness against himself, and voluntarily offered himself as a witness on his own behalf, and by so doing he become bound to submit himself to a proper cross-examination. The complaint is that he was required, on cross-examination, to state whether he had received a certain letter, which was shown, purporting to have been written by Johann Most and addressed to him, and, upon his saying that he had, the Court allowed the letter to be read in evidence against him. This, it is claimed, was not proper cross-examination. It is not contended that the subject to which the cross-examination related was not pointed to an issue, and whether a cross-examination must be confined to matters pertinent to the testimony in chief, or may be extended to the matters in issue, is certainly a question of State law in the courts of a State, and not of federal law.

"Something has been said in the argument about an alleged unreasonable search and seizure of the papers and property of some of the defendants and their use in evidence on the trial of the case. Special reference is made in this connection to the letter of Most, about which Spies was cross-examined, but we have not been referred to any part of the record in which it appears that objection was made to the use of evidence on that account. Even though the Court was wrong in saying that it did not appear that the Most letter was one of the papers illegally seized, it still remained uncontradicted that objection was made in the trial court to its admission on that account. To give us jurisdiction under the section, it must appear that such objection was made under Section 109 of the Revised Statute. The question whether the letter was obtained as claimed would have been competent evidence is not before us, and therefore, no foundation is laid under this objection for the exercise of jurisdiction.

THE ALIEN PLEA FAILS.

"As to the suggestion by counsel for petitioners, Spies and Fielden, that Spies having been born in Germany and Fielden in Great Britain, they have been denied by the decision of the Court below, the rights guaranteed to them by treaties between the United States and their respective countries, it is sufficient to say that no such questions were made and decided in either of the courts below, and they cannot be raised in this court, for, since we have not been referred to any treaty, neither were we aware of any under which such a question could be raised. Being of opinion that the federal questions presented by counsel for petitioners, and which they say they desire to argue, are in fact involved in the determination of the case as it appears on the face of the records, we deny the granting of a writ of error."

The decision of the court was unanimous.

THE NEWS IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—As soon as the news from Washington had generally circulated through the city, a miscellaneous rush of people came to see the condemned men. Friends of the condemned men, bearers of delicacies for them, begged admittance. The dainties were passed in, but only relatives gained admittance. Sheriff Matson said: "I don't want to make any fuss about it, but the visits of other Anarchists have got to stop. Personally, I would like to grant the doomed men all the favors I could, but I don't think it would be wise to do so." The first of the relatives of the condemned men to visit the jail was Mrs. Engel. She moved about in a nervous manner. Lingg's aunt and a young lady cousin and one of his admirers came next. They were all downcast, with traces of tears on their cheeks, but they had not been talking to the bombmaker five minutes when they were all laughing. Frank Beifeldt of the Arbeiter Zeitung came, and shortly followed by Spies's two brothers and his mother, who seemed to feel her sorrow deeply. Mrs. Parsons and her two children came, and with them ladies entrusted in the work of the Amnesty Association. Every one of the prisoners had a semblance, at least, of positively cheerful spirits.

CHICAGO AUTHORITIES NOT SURPRISED.

The Chicago jail authorities did not evince any surprise when informed of the Anarchists' decision. "It was just what was expected," said Jailer Folz. The Anarchists received the news unmoved, and refused to express an opinion in the matter.

To the execution the Sheriff will admit only representatives of the press, Press Association, members of the jury and attorneys, as provided by law. Everything is perfectly quiet in and around the jail, and, in fact, over the whole city. The sentiment of the police is one of satisfaction at the result of the hearing in the Supreme Court. Capt. Buckley said: "It is a retribution for the murder of officers, whose wives are now widows, and children orphans. I trust and believe the Governor will not interfere."

NO VISITORS ALLOWED.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—After the news of the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of the Anarchists reached here, each one of the condemned men was asked if he had anything to say about the verdict, to which each replied that he had nothing to say. Within fifteen minutes after the verdict was announced many people disposed themselves about the building and neighborhood. The rule of debarring visitors from the jail was quickly put in force, and no one was allowed to enter the building during the afternoon except officers, reporters and relatives of the Anarchists.

GOV. OGLESBY WILL NOT INTERFERE.

SPRINGFIELD (Ill.), Nov. 2.—There is absolutely nothing to be said as to the probable action of the Governor in the condemned Anarchists' case, as His Excellency declines to say anything on the subject. The decision of the United States Supreme Court was made known to him shortly before noon today, and his features at once assumed an expression of real gravity. He received a number of letters and petitions on the subject today, and it is asserted that three Chicago ladies visited him in the interest of the condemned men. There is a bare possibility that he may interfere in the interest of Fielden and Schwab, though he has not said anything to indicate even this.

Decision Affecting the Statute of Limitations.

Death of Capt. Ham, a Pioneer, at San Jose.

One Poor Lone Man Robs Two Mail Coaches.

Sale of Arizona Bonds—Indians on Trial at The Needles—The Harlan Murder Case at Woodland—An Unworthy Warship.

By Telegraph to The Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—[Special.] A novel question which has never, except in one case, been passed upon by the Supreme Court, was decided this morning by Judge Hunt, in the suit of Thomas H. Smith against James R. Gates to recover on a promisory note for $6000, executed many years ago. The suit was to recover on the note with interest from June 15, 1882, to the present time. The defense held that the debt was barred by the statute of limitations. The face of the note bore ample evidence that this plea shut out the note, but the point raised by plaintiff was as to the effect of an acknowledgment overcoming this plea. Testimony was to the effect that in 1882, and in within four years of the commencement of this action, plaintiff received a letter from Gates, inclosing $560, $500 of which, it was stated in the letter, was to pay part of the principal and $60 interest. The letter was submitted as an acknowledgment of the debt. The question then for the Court to determine was whether a promise to pay defendant, after it had been barred by the statute of limitations, revived the indebtedness. Judge Hunt held that it did; that an acknowledgment is sufficient to take the case out of the statute of limitations; that the acknowledgment must be either expressed or implied. In the case at bar it was implied, as the letter of defendant showed. Judge Hunt said that a careful review of the decisions of the Supreme Court failed to show any bearing upon the question at issue except one, and that was away back in the Ninth California reports, and in that case the Court held to the same effect as he held. The action of the defendant had revitalized the statute of limitations, and he gave judgment for plaintiff in $5500, with interest at 1 per cent. from June, 1882. W.

MURDERED.

ALBUQUERQUE, Nov. 2.—It is now stated that José Gutierrez, major-domo of the Yrisarri Ranche, was not murdered by cowboys, as at first reported. An American, whose name is not given, called at the ranche of Mr. Roberts Sunday and borrowed a horse to go over to the Antelope Springs Ranche. He appeared later at Yrisarri's and went away with Gutierrez. The latter did not return during the night, and a party of sheep herders, headed by Yrissari, went to look for him and found his dead body. He had apparently been rolling a cigarette when shot. A party is out looking for the murderers.

ALL SOULS' DAY.

Interesting and Impressive Catholic Services Yesterday.

Yesterday was a holiday of obligation, and was celebrated as such in all the Catholic churches. The day is known on the church calendar as "All Saints' Day," and derives its name from the fact that so many saints have been canonized in the church that a day cannot be set apart in the year for the commemoration of each, and therefore November 1st is celebrated throughout the Catholic world as the Day of All Saints. The next day, November 2d, is celebrated as All Souls' Day. The faithful of the Catholic Church spent yesterday in prayer at Calvary Cemetery on Buena Vista street. The graves were elaborately decorated with flowers, and during the entire previous night candles were kept burning encircling the graves. These candles and flowers were provided by the immediate relatives of the deceased.

Some three thousand of the faithful visited the cemetery during the day, and the sight yesterday afternoon was impressive. At 3 o'clock almost the entire cemetery was filled by kneeling forms, which, relieved by the beautiful flowers and lighted candles, presented a memorable picture. After spending some time in prayer, those present listened to a sermon suitable to the occasion, and ably delivered by the Rev. Father Scannel, who, in the course of his remarks, impressed most indelibly upon the minds of the prayerful his reasons for knowing the existence of purgatory. He exhorted those present to pray for their relatives and friends detained in purgatory, that they might be the sooner liberated therefrom and be allowed to enter into the kingdom and glory of heaven. After a short prayer, Rev. Father Peter Verdaguer preached a sermon in Spanish, taking for his text: "The wisdom and goodness of God in establishing a church where the souls of the departed faithful are ever remembered in prayer."

This custom of service at the cemeteries on All Souls' Day, the 2d of November, has been followed in Los Angeles since 1880, when, through the energy of Father Peter and the approval of Bishop Mora, the day of prayer in this peculiar yet beautiful way was first begun and since continued. The attendant faithful were representative of the best Catholic families, both American and Spanish, in the city.

LA PRESA!

The Beautiful Swiss Village on Lake Como BEING REPRODUCED IN SAN DIEGO.

The most novel thing yet undertaken in the development of this southern country is now being done at LA PRESA, nine miles from San Diego. The plan is to reproduce in that delightful spot the counterpart of the celebrated Swiss village on Lake Como, in Northern Italy. To this end a railroad is being built to the place, and a fine modern hotel is to be erected at once. The situation is most delightful; far enough removed from the sea to escape rough winds, yet near enough to be always cool. With pure water, fine scenery, and the best of soil, LA PRESA is just the place to invest for a quick turn with big profits. LA PRESA is sure to grow rapidly, as it has all the elements to attract a select class of settlers.

Lots are Sold for the Low Price of $100 to $125 Each.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Money on call was easy at 3 to 4 per cent.; closed offered at 3.

Prime mercantile paper, 6@8 per cent.

Sterling exchange, dull but steady at 4.81¾ for 60-day bills; 4.85½ for demand.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—The stock market today was a shade more active, but the temper of speculation was not so bullish as yesterday, though the market showed a firm undertone throughout. London did very little, and bull leaders were inclined to let well enough alone, so that the disposition of traders to force a reaction, though unsuccessful, served to keep prices as a rule down to the level of last night's figures.

Government bonds were dull and steady.

TWO FRIENDS MEET.

"Hello! old fellow. What have you been doing to yourself? You look like a subject for the undertaker," exclaimed the man on the right.

"I have been taking mercury and potash mixtures until they have nearly ruined me," squeaked the old man on crutches.

"And I," said the other, "have been taking the genuine Swift's Specific, which has built me up from the first dose."

SWIFT'S SPECIFIC.

Nature's own remedy, made from roots gathered from the forests of Georgia. The method by which it is made was obtained by a half-breed from the Creek Indians, who inhabited a certain portion of Georgia, which was communicated to one of the early settlers, and thus the formula has been handed down to the present day. The demand has been increasing until a $100,000 laboratory is now necessary to supply the trade. A foreign demand has been created, and enlarged facilities will be necessary to meet it. This great

THE JURY CONVICTS TOM GORMLEY, THE RAPE DEVIL.

The Final Mass of Damaging Evidence Which Doomed the Most Repulsive Wretch in the County's History—His Effrontery.

The third day's trial of Tom Gormley for committing rape upon little Maggie Sweitzer came on for hearing yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. Judge Cheney's courtroom was again crowded with spectators, who listened with the same intense interest as has characterized their actions throughout the trial.

On the convening of court several arraignments were had, but all were postponed until today at 10 o'clock, owing to the absence of the attorneys for their respective clients.

J. C. Moore, who, with his 16-year-old daughter, is charged with the crime of incest, announced that Mr. Williams had been retained as their attorney, but as that gentleman was not present, the arraignment was postponed until today at 10 o'clock. The trial of the case of The People vs. Hensleman, charged with embezzlement, was set for this morning.

The first witness called in the Gormley case for the prosecution yesterday morning was testified: I am a physician and surgeon. I reside on South Spring street. I was called professionally to see the child Maggie Sweitzer. I suppose it was twenty-four hours after the occurrence. Before making a critical examination I found her very weak, nervous and prostrated. On examination I found the parts lacerated, contused, considerable hemhorrage, and in a very bad condition generally. The injuries had been inflicted recently, I should say within forty-eight hours.

Dr. Lindley stated that judging from the condition of the child when he made an examination of her, the injuries received might have been produced by rape. In answer to a hypothetical question produced by Mr. Denis, which question covered all the conditions of the child when examined, the witness stated that such condition would probably have been caused in a case of rape. There was some penetration. The witness identified Maggie Sweitzer as the child examined by him. She was ill about three weeks.

To Mr. Savage: The hemhorrage was caused by laceration.

The doctor's testimony at this point was of a professional and technical nature, and is not adapted to be published.

The child was sick in bed for three weeks. The injuries could have been caused by falling on a snag or from other causes.

To Mr. Denis: There was evidence of violence, and such as to convince me that the injuries were not from other causes. She was in bed from the middle of July until the fore part of August. Dr. Morris assisted me in the examination.

To a juror: There was coagulation of the blood found when I examined her.

To another juror: I noticed no other bruises, and asked if she complained of other pains, and she said no.

MAGGIE SWEITZER (RECALLED).

The little child was here re-examined as to some points brought out in her testimony on the day before. She adhered to her statements, which, though in simple, childish language, cannot be printed.

To Mr. Savage: He hurt me after he laid down to sleep. He laid there till it got dark. He wasn't drunk then. He laid down and slept the drunk off. He put his hand over my eyes.

Upon leaving the witness stand Maggie said something to Gormley, but in too low a voice to be heard by any one except Gormley.

The prosecution here rested.

Mr. Savage made the opening statement for the defense. He said: We propose to show that on the 12th of July last the defendant left his camp for Los Angeles. He took several drinks at Lamanda Park. He drew about $200 from the bank. He drank all day without eating. That at night he was drunk. He passed the night on a brickpile. He drank again heavily next day. That in this condition he took the child into his care. At Lamanda Park he spent an hour in a saloon. That on the way he laid down, and was so sick he vomited. That at some place he played with the girl. We contend that whatever crime he is guilty of it is not that of rape.

CHARLES H. WEBB

was sworn and said: I reside in Los Angeles. I resided here on the 12th and 13th of July. I was in the saloon business at No. 7 East First street. I saw the defendant on the 12th of July in the forenoon before 10 o'clock. At that time I could not tell exactly as to his sobriety. I saw him subsequently. The last time I saw him that day I could not tell his condition at the time he gave me the money. He had been drinking. I saw him the next morning. He looked pretty rough. He told me he was lying on a brickpile. He was covered with brick dust. The last time I saw him he wasn't drunk, though he had been drinking. He was slightly under the influence of liquor. He carried his valise out of the saloon.

On cross-examination: I have seen him under the influence of liquor several times. He came in the next day and asked me to give him the hundred dollars. I gave it to him. He came in several times with parcels and I took care of them for him. He came in afterward and said he must catch the 4 o'clock train, and he took his things and went.

The name of Denis McCarthy was called, but that witness did not respond to his name.

DAN LEWIS,

a darky doing time for embezzlement, testified: I know the defendant. I saw him in the Elite saloon on July 12th or 13th. I could not say whether he was drunk or sober.

MRS. MARTHA GORMLEY:

I am the wife of the defendant. I was residing at the camp on July 12th. I saw my husband on the evening of that day. He arrived home about 11 o'clock with Maggie Sweitzer. He was very much intoxicated. My husband does not show the signs of liquor generally. The little girl did not make a statement to me. She did not seem to be suffering that I saw. My husband when under the influence of liquor is not physically capable of doing such a thing. He was suffering from seminal weakness.

To Mr. Denis: I am a heavy drinker sometimes. I was not drunk yesterday; I was sick. I was the wife of Gormley last July. We were married before Christmas. I was living with him before that—I don't know how long. I washed out what she said were apricot stains. I knew he went away because he got in trouble with the girl.

To Mr. Savage: I was present when Miller advised my husband to leave. Miller said he thought it was best for him to leave. Miller asked Gormley to send his address, and promised to send him money.

THOMAS GORMLEY,

the defendant, testified: I am the defendant in this case. I was residing on the 12th of last July about three and a half miles from Lamanda Park. I was working on a tunnel with Mr. Miller, who testified here yesterday. On the morning of the 12th I started without breakfast about 5:30 o'clock. I had worked all night before, and eat only an egg. I missed the 7 o'clock train and waited for the 9 o'clock train. I got on that train for this city. I drew $200 from the National Bank. I was pretty drunk at night. I slept on a pile of brick with $175 in my pocket. I had my room paid for. I got a drink about daylight. I had to walk around town considerable before I found a place open. I found the Elite saloon open. I went in and got a cocktail. I had two or three. I bought the necessary articles the day before. I bought medicine for myself. I saw Maggie Sweitzer that day. Mrs. Miller, when I came in, gave me a bundle to deliver to the next house. I brought it to the lady's house. When I was coming out Mrs. Sweitzer came out and asked me to come in. I went in and sat down. I had a glass of wine with her. She always has wine. She asked me to take Maggie out again, and said she would behave herself. I met the little girl outside and I asked her if she wanted to go with me. She said she did. I went and got my valise, and, getting an express wagon, I helped the girl in and took the 4 o'clock train for Lamanda Park. I had a drink at the park in the store. The night before I heard Mrs. Langtry was in town, and I thought I would go and see her. I bought a ticket and sat on the steps, and that's the last I remember.

I am under the impression I called at the livery stable. I walked out about a quarter of a mile from town. I laid down under a tree. I wasn't laying there long before a team came along with some Chinamen. Thinks I won't lay here; they will report me to the superintendent. The little girl was ahead of me. I went in on the left-hand road. I got in the brush and vomited. I think I laid there half an hour; the sun was still up. I started on again—must have walked half a mile—then it commenced to get dusk at the place we stopped to get some apricots from an old gentleman in a buggy. I got sick again after eating the apricots. All the injury that was done, was done at that time. How I came to use my hand I don't know. They claim I wasn't drunk. The little girl told in camp that she had to lead me. Mr. Miller knows I stumbled over the plank in the tunnel and nearly broke my neck. He gave me the last drop of brandy he had in the house. Next morning I got up and went down and saw the blacksmithing. After that I went and got a cup of coffee. During the time I was eating breakfast the little girl sat in front of the house. After she had been sitting there a while she goes up the flume with the other children. She wasn't gone a great while. After breakfast I went to the tunnel, but not feeling like work, I came back to the house and laid down. I heard Mrs. Miller going over to the tunnel. I asked my wife if anything had happened to the little girl. I asked her to go and see. I began to think something had happened the night before. She went, and came and told me that I had better go to the tunnel and see for myself. Miller asked me if I had done anything to the little girl. He said, "You had better skip out for a little while."

Q. Did you commit rape on the person of Maggie Sweitzer?

A. I did not. May Christ paralyze me right here if I did, or try to do so. If she is hurt at all that is the way I must have hurt her with my finger, because I didn't do anything else. The morning after I had made full arrangements. I told Miller: "I will go to San Bernardino. I will stay there two or three days." But the papers got to making such a noise about it I went to San Diego. I stayed there a week, intending all the time to come back. I didn't think it would amount to what it does. I didn't fear anything more than a slight trouble.

On cross-examination: I weigh about 172 pounds. I didn't weigh any more on the 12th of July. I hung out opposite the depot the first night, and near the Salvation Army the next night. I did not state to Martin Aguirre that I stopped at a house of ill fame. From San Bernardino I went to San Diego. I went from there to Ensenada. I don't know how I occupied my time from 12 o'clock on the 13th until 3 o'clock. I delivered the package in the afternoon. At Lamanda Park, when I left this place I might have been apparently as sober as I am now. I took but one drink there, I think. I am not sure that I asked for a team there, I am sure that I tried to get the team at the store. I remember getting in the express wagon and having the girl. I never stagger when I am drunk. If I remember everything that happened on that day I would have more witnesses here. I remember being sick and eating the apricots. I remember that that was about dusk. We must have walked on about half a mile. I believe I remember of when I injured her with my fingers.

Q. Then you were not drunk on that night?

A. Yes, I was. The next morning after breakfast I thought of what occurred for the first time after the offense had been committed.

Q. How did you happen to think to play with this little girl in the manner in which you did?

A. I don't remember exactly what brought it into my mind. I did not see my wife wash the apron of Maggie the next morning. I used very little force with the girl, if any. If she had cried I would have ceased. I think she cried. I certainly did let her alone when she cried. I did not state to Miller that I was fooling with the girl, but did not succeed in doing anything farther. I remember the lights were lit when I got home.

To Mr. Savage: My recollection is sufficiently clear to say that I did not attempt rape. I was not so drunk but that I would have remembered it if I had.

To Mr. Denis: I wouldn't have remembered what I have if she hadn't cried and told me about it afterward.

EVIDENCE ALL IN.

At 12:15 both sides announced that they had introduced all their testimony. The Court announced that to avoid the necessity of an evening session the court would convene at 1:15.

MR. DENIS' ARGUMENT.

Deputy District Attorney George J. Denis opened the argument for the State. In his remarks he said that although it was generally his habit to make but short arguments, leaving the case to the intelligence of the jury to arrive at a just verdict from the facts as presented on the witness stand and the law as laid down by the Court, yet in a case of the magnitude of the one on trial he could not forbear from arguing fully to the jury. There was a time when, if a man had committed a crime such as Gormley is now on trial for, a jury would not have been necessary to sit on the case. We happen to be a people so law-abiding that we would prefer to allow the law to take its course rather than to hang this man by the neck until he were dead other than by the hands of the legal executioner. Look at the physical difference between the two—he a man of 172 pounds, she a little, tiny, sickly creature of 10 years of age. There was a time when the law punished with death the crime of rape, but this is not the time or age. No, the gallows is not for him. Would to God that it were!

MR. SAVAGE'S ARGUMENT.

Mr. Savage, followed in his argument for the defense. He regretted that owing to the public interest taken in the case, and its magnitude, some one of more experience had not charge of it as defendant's attorney. He had taken the case under an order of the Court, without compensation. He would not shirk doing his duty on that account, however. He had done his utmost for the interests of his client. The crime of which his client was charged is of the most heinous, but the jury must look upon the matter cooly and deliberatly, and weigh the evidence and examine the proofs unswayed by passion or prejudice.

Mr. Denis closed for the prosecution, and Judge Cheney delivered his charge to the jury, warming up to considerable eloquence as he laid down the law that intoxication is no excuse for such a crime. The jury retired at 3:25, and precisely at 3:29 sent word that they had agreed upon a verdict.

When the jury had resumed their seats His Honor said that he did not know as yet what the verdict was; but, whatever the result might be, if any demonstration of applause or otherwise was shown on the part of the crowded spectators he would have them arrested and brought before him for contempt of court. The courtroom was no place for any such actions, and he would tolerate nothing of the kind. The jury were then asked if they had agreed upon a verdict, and responded through their foreman that they had agreed upon a verdict of "guilty as charged." The jury were then polled and each answered to his name, answering in the affirmative when asked if the verdict as recorded was his own verdict. The defendant showed but little signs of agitation, calmly lighting a cigarette when the court had adjourned. He had evidently nerved himself for the worst, and indeed no one hearing the testimony could have expected a verdict other than that rendered by the jury.

The Sheriff and his deputies had taken due precautions against any escape on the part of the prisoner, or a disturbance by the crowd, by placing an extra guard over him. He was taken into Judge O'Melveny's court in charge of Deputy Sheriffs Cruz and Coony, thereby avoiding the multitude in front of the courthouse, who had congregated to have a look at the arch-fiend. His manner was that of relief when he got without the gaze of the hundreds of spectators, and, when returned to the County Jail, he assumed the same sulky demeanor that has characterized him since his capture and incarceration.

He will be sentenced on next Saturday. The maximum penalty that can be meted out to him is imprisonment in the State Prison for the term of his natural life—a limit which it is generally believed and universally hoped that he will receive.

AGITATED AZUSA.

THE WATER-WAR HATCHET NOT YET BURIED.

The Latest Order of Judge O'Melveny Received and Commented Upon—Action Taken—Boyce as a "Leader of Liberality," Etc.

The Azusa water war is not yet ended, and although everything is quite on the surface, there is a very strong under-current of feeling which is liable at any moment to break out afresh and cause serious trouble. The situation is, to say the least, extremely uncertain and it will require the most careful treatment to avoid a collision between the opposing factions. A joint meeting of the Azusa and Duarte companies was held yesterday morning in Justice Sheldon's courtroom at Azusa, which was attended by most of the stockholders. After some preliminary business, the injunction issued by Judge O'Melveny was read, as follows:

In the Superior Court of the county of Los Angeles, State of California. The Azusa Water Development and Irrigating Company, a corporation, plaintiff, vs. The Azusa Irrigating Company, a corporation, et al., defendants. Injunction.

The People of the State of California to the Azusa Irrigating Company, a corporation, the Duarte Mutual Irrigation and Canal Company, a corporation; the Beardslee Water Ditch Company, a corporation; the Gladstone Improvement Company, a corporation; the Azusa Land and Water Company, a Corporation; the Azusa Agricultural Water Company, a corporation; the San José Land and Water Company, a corporation; H. That the said court has duly considered the motion of the said defendants for a dissolution of the injunction heretofore herein granted by the court on the 17th day of October, 1887, and now maintains the same, and orders the same to remain in full force and effect until the further order of this court, with this modification: That for the better understanding of said injunction, it is ordered that the said order of injunction is not to be understood as restraining the defendants from diverting from the San Gabriel River by means of their old dam and water ditches, the amount of water which they have heretofore been accustomed to divert by means of said dam and ditches. But they are not to understand by this modification that they are entitled to interfere with the water claimed to be water developed by the plaintiff, but they are restrained hereby from interfering with said developed water until the further order of the court.

[SEAL] H. K. S. O'MELVENY,
Judge of the Superior Court.

A True Copy.
JAMES C. KAYS, Sheriff.

A general discussion ensued, the result of which was that a committee was appointed to carry out the provisions of the document, and it was ordered posted up in a conspicuous place in Azusa, with the following notice attached:

"All persons concerned and included in the above decree are requested to observe its requirements.

"JOHN SCOTT,
"President Duarte Irrigating Company.
"O. STRESHLY,
"President Azusa Irrigating Company.
"THOMAS WARDELL,
"President Beardslee Water-Ditch Company."

The meeting then adjourned, subject to the call of the president.

AT THE SEAT OF WAR.

After the adjournment of the meeting the TIMES reporter, who had attended it, was driven up to the ditch at the mouth of the cañon. Here everything was quiet. Two or three guards, armed with Winchester rifles, were standing about the mouth of the tunnel, evidently prepared for any emergency. In a few minutes the Azusa-Duarte committee arrived, and made known the action of their meeting. One or two representatives of the Covina Company also put in an appearance, but nothing was done toward opening the Covina Tunnel, which had been stopped up, and, after a few minutes' general talk, all parties left the cañon and returned to Azusa, leaving the sentinels still on guard, and evidently prepared for a lengthy siege.

THE INJUNCTION DISCUSSED.

Quite a number of the Azusa people were interviewed regarding the injuction, among others William Chippendale, secretary of the Azusa company, who said: "Yes, we will obey the injunction. While we are very much disappointed and dissatisfied with the action of the court, and think that if Judge O'Melveny had understood the questions involved he would have decided differently, still we are anxious to put ourselves on record as law-abiding and peaceable citizens, and will submit to the decree. As to the likelihood of trouble, I cannot say. There are numerous others interested in the matter whom we cannot control, as they are not stockholders in our companies, and for them we cannot speak. The main question, as you know, is still pending before Judge Hutton, and it will take some time to settle that, and until such settlement is effected we cannot know definitely what we will do. Judge O'Melveny has agreed to raise the injunction on our filing $10,000 bonds, and this will probably be done tomorrow. In the mean time everything is in abeyance."

H. C. Roberts said: Of course we are dissatisfied with Judge O'Melveny's action, and, we think, with good cause. As a matter of fact, we object to being imposed upon, and that is the way it looks to us. The real cause of the whole affair is simply this: Some time ago Col. H. H. Boyce came up here, as he said, as the representative of M. L. Wicks, who, he claimed, owned a controlling interest in the Covina ditch. He came, he said, to take the lead in liberality, and wanted to make a compromise by which the Covina people should control and handle the water, and distribute it to the irrigators of the Azusa; that we had more water than was necessary; that one inch to eight acres of land was sufficient, and that unless we entered into a compromise favorable to their interests they would obtain a decree from the courts to the effect that we should not have more than the amount above named, and that unless we accepted this ultimatum they would institute legal proceedings that would throw a cloud upon the titles to our lands that it would take years to remove. We believe this whole matter has been brought about to force us into a compromise, and this, of course, we will fight to the last.

Various other parties interviewed expressed about the same sentiments as above given; and so the matter stands. By Judge O'Melveny's decree restraining the Azusa people from interfering with the "developed" water of the plaintiffs, the Covina people are entitled to 145 inches. This amount, it is claimed, if taken, will cause a very serious shortage in the Azusa ditch. In the meantime, the mouth of the Covina tunnel is closed, cutting off the entire supply, and it will take a considerable amount of work to open it. There are undoubtedly armed guards in the cañon, and the questions are, Who will open the tunnel, and who is to measure the water? Until this is settled there is danger of very serious trouble. The Azusa people say that the first man who tries to open that tunnel will get hurt.

Sixty dozen fowls were burned in an accident near Winslow, Ariz. This is the second shipment they have received in a short time, making 480 dozen fowls in all. The poultry costs $2.50 a dozen in Iowa, and is worth $6 to $6.50 here.

A RELIC.

JEFFERSON'S ROUGH DRAFT OF THE DECLARATION.

An Interesting Document—How the Immortal Paper Was Conceived and Begun—Jefferson, Franklin and Adams, the Framers.

[Philadelphia Times.]

In the library of the Department of State on exhibition under lock and key and glass are four precious relics of the great declaration, the desk upon which it was written in Philadelphia, the ancient, time-discolored, antique foolscap sheet upon which the first draft was written, the engrossed and signed copy on parchment and one of the authorized fac similes.

The desk is very similar to the modern portable writing desks, made of mahogany, with an inlaid border of white wood. It consists of a box two inches deep and twelve by fourteen inches square, with a brass-handled drawer on the right side, with partitions forming boxes for inkstand still with it, sand, pens and paper. The top consists of two leaves, which, when in use, being opened, the upper is supported on a rest and the lower rests on the table, forming the usual angle. The inside surface is covered with green baize. With the desk is a photographic copy of a paper in Jefferson's handwriting, as follows:

"Th. Jefferson gives this writing desk to Joseph Coolidge, Jun'r, as a memorial of affection. It was made from a drawing of his own by Ben Randall, cabinet maker of Philadelphia, with whom he first lodged on his arrival in that city in May, 1776, and is the identical one on which he wrote the Declaration of Independence. Politics, as well as religion, has its superstitions. These, gaining strength with time, may one day give imaginary value to this relic for its associations with the birth of the great charter of our independence.

"Monticello, November 18, 1885."

On the same sheet, in the chirography of the nineteenth President, are the words:

"Presented to the United States by the heirs of the late Joseph Coolidge, Jr. Placed in my possession by Hon. Robert C. Winthrop of Massachusetts, and by me transmitted to Congress with a special message. R. B. HAYES.

"April 22, 1880."

The original draft, written in Jefferson's fine hand, fills but two pages of a sheet of paper of ordinary foolscap size. It was folded in three parts, and at the creases is worn completely through by handling and one hundred and eleven years of gnawing of the tooth of time. It has but few corrections in the original text, each being noted on the margin by the name of their author on the committee. The entire first text was drawn by Jefferson, and the corrections are exclusively matters of phrasing to suit the hobbies or literary notions of the other two. For instance, Jefferson's phraseology in the introductory lines: "From that insubordination in which they have hitherto remained and to—" has an ink line drawn through it, and the words, in his own hand, doubtless suggested by his colleagues: "To dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another and to assume," etc., are substituted. Dr. Franklin, in the next paragraph, substituted "under absolute despotism" instead of "to arbitrary power." Mr. Adams contemptuously substituted "the present King of Great Britain" in place of the Jefferson words "his present majesty." Franklin substituted "destroy us" for "deluge us in blood."

A few other similar changes were made in the first text on this invaluable little sheet, which not only bears the mortal tracery of that triumvirate of patriots, Jefferson, Franklin and Adams, but was the paper over which the parliamentary deliberations and actions of the Continental Congress of 1776 were had up to the culminating act of engrossment on the broad time-stained vellum which bears the signatures of the immortal fifty-six.

In reference to the writing of the Declaration, Jefferson, in a letter to Dr. James Mease, dated at Montecelo, September 16, 1825, at 82 years of age and less than a year before his death, says that when writing it he lodged in a three-story brick house, owned by a Mr. Graaf, of whom he rented the second floor, consisting of a parlor and bed room. He wrote it in the parlor. Graaf, he says, was the son of a German, was newly married and a bricklayer by trade. The house, he says, was on Market street, south side, between Seventh and Eighth streets. The engrossed copy was held, with the archives of the Continental Congress, by Charles Thomson, secretary of that body, during the entire war, who kept it sacredly secure from capture during the repeated flights of Congress before the invading British forces.

After the inauguration of Washington, the first President directed that the Declaration of Independence, Constitution of the United States and other important State papers be placed in possession of Roger Alden, who had been Deputy Secretary of the Continental Congress under Charles Thomson, and was then appointed Chief Clerk of the Department of State for Foreign Affairs. It has been in the custody of the Department of State, with an intermission, ever since. Upon the British invasion of Washington, in 1814, it was saved, with other archives of the department, by Disbursing Clerk Pleasanton. On May 26, 1824, Congress ordered 200 copies of the Declaration of Independence to be made in fac simile, to be distributed as follows: Two copies to each survivor of the signers, two to the President of the United States, two to "the late" President (Mr. Madison), two to Marquis Lafayette, twenty to the two houses of Congress, twelve to the different departments of the Government, two for the President's house, two for the Supreme Court room, one to each of the governors of States, one to each branch of their Legislatures of States, one to each Governor of Territories of the United States, one to the Legislative Council of each Territory, and the remainder to the different universities and colleges as directed by the President of the United States. John Quincy Adams, who was Secretary of State at the time, sent the copy to his father, one of the committee to draft the instrument, with an appropriate letter.

The plate from which the fac simile was made is still in possession of the Department of State. In making the transfer for the copy the process employed absorbed so much of the ink that the parchment original is almost illegible.

Many years ago the original was placed on exhibition with Ben Franklin's printing press, Washington's and Jackson's uniforms and other historic relics, in the model museum of the Patent Office. The robbery of Jackson's diamond-studded snuff-box by the notorious thief Tom Hand, led to some anxiety as to the safety of the invaluable writing, but it was not until 1876, after its exhibition at the Centennial of its enactment at Philadelphia, that the sacred parchment was taken from the Patent Office and restored to the safe and proper custody of the Department of State. On August 3, 1876, Congress passed a joint resolution constituting the Secretary of the Interior, Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution and Librarian of Congress a commission to report on the practicability of restoring the legibility of the chirography of the original instrument. They reported that the ink had been absorbed in taking the official copy of 1824, and was not faded by time; therefore, restoration was impossible. Such is the history of the great charter of American liberty.

RANDOLPH.

THE WORST YET.

The Latest Fraud on Farmers Who Don't Read Newspapers.

[Kittanning Free Press.]

A farmer in Armstrong county was recently made the victim of the wiles of a traveling sharper. This farmer does not take a newspaper—in fact, thinks they cost too much and are of no account anyway. He is therefore not as well posted on the current events of the day as he might be. A few days ago, while hard at work in his field, a well-dressed stranger rode up to the fence, dismounted and walked over to where his innocent victim was working.

"Good morning, sir," said the stranger, as he came up. "Hard at work, I see. Well, it's nice weather for the farmers, isn't it?"

"I 'low it is," responded the farmer, and then he eyed the stranger rather suspiciously.

"I want to show you some specimens of fine sheep," began the stranger, unfolding an album in which were some handsome photographs of the mutton tribe. "Here are the photographs of our stock," he continued. "Just look at that, will you?" and the farmer the next minute was admiring a fine picture.

The unsuspecting farmer, who never reads the papers, finally selected one of the lot, and upon the representation of the stranger that the sheep from which the photograph was taken would be shipped him at once, persuaded him to make a purchase. He was to pay $25 for it, and the stranger wanted $10 upon the purchase in order that the stock man who raised it would feel satisfied to ship it. The farmer paid over the $10 and the stranger departed.

He is waiting for his purchase yet, and will, no doubt, continue to wait for many moons yet.

English Eligibles.

[Albany Journal.]

The three most eligible men in England, in a matrimonial way, are the Duke of Norfolk, the Earl of Dudley and the Duke of Portland. The latter Duke is the nephew of the late eccentric nobleman, who erected a high glass wall about his premises in Cavendish Square. He always had a handsome dinner served daily when he was absent, the dishes being put upon the table and removed without having been tasted. Thus the servants were always expecting the Duke's arrival. He gave his butler instructions after each dinner, if he were in the house, to come to him and say: "My lord, the dinner is served, and thank God, the china is safe." His grace had the finest collection of rare china in England. The Earl of Dudley is quite young, and is like his beautiful mother, the famous professional beauty.

A Widow's Opinion of Western Men.

[Arkansaw Traveler.]

A widow having come from the East and established herself in a Western town, was visited by a friend from the old home.

"Well, how do you like it out here, anyway?"

"Not very well."

"People too rough for you?"

"They are not only rough—they are peculiar; and, in fact, the men are greatly overrated."

"In what way?"

"Well, I'll make a plain statement and let you draw your own conclusions. I had read in the newspapers that women were in demand out here, and I naturally expected some little attention."

"Didn't you receive it?"

"Wait until I get through with my statement, please. I bought a light colored wig, got a new set of teeth, had my glass eye reglazed and plunged into the mad whirl of society. That was six months ago, and I am still a widow."

"Pretty bad, I must admit; but didn't you get any proposals?"

"One."

"Why didn't you take him?"

"Influenced too much by appearances, doubtless. Perhaps I did wrong in rejecting him, but I was girlish in my notions. He had only one leg, was almost blind, was in debt, swore considerable, chewed navy tobacco, and was a great liar. Perhaps, though, regardless of appearances, I would have married him had I not heard a damaging report concerning him."

"What was it?"

"Why, I heard he was not a lover of the fine arts. Oh, yes, the men out in this part of the country are greatly overrated."

Difference Between Will and Deed

[Albany Argus.]

A learned counselor of law, whose birthplace was over the Rhine, thus wrestled with "English as she is spoke" in one of our State Appellate Courts recently. The case involved the point whether a certain paper executed by the father of the plaintiff was a will or deed, and he thus lucidly explained the terms to the judges: "Eef a man egsecutes a baper that ees to take effect at vonce, that eer a deet; but eef he egsecutes dot baper to take effect after he ees det, that ees a vill."

29,000 Acres 29,000

—OF—

THE BEST CITRUS LAND IN THE STATE!

Offered for sale in twenty-acre blocks, and can be bought in five, ten, fifteen or twenty-acre subdivisions.

Lytle Creek Water Piped on Each Lot.

Avenues 150 Feet in Width Traverse the Tract.

Water Furnished from a Covered Cement Ditch.

This land lies on the elevated plain directly west of San Bernardino city. The plain is a vast elevated table-land, with just enough of gentle undulation to break the monotony of the landscape.

Owing to the elevation, frost is practically unknown. Flowers in myriads bloom during the winter, the tenderest tomato sprigs are unscathed by frost, and the orange blossoms bloom in beauty throughout the winter. The view is one of the noblest and most picturesque in Nature. Each twenty-acre lot has a fine road at each end.

There are 29,000 acres in this tract, but 10,000 acres only are as yet surveyed. The town, RIALTO, is located near the center of this 10,000-acre tract and on the California Central.

The California Central and the Southern Pacific both traverse this great tract, and in all probability the Southern Pacific's parallel route will soon add a third railroad to this princely citrus tract. The western line of the tract is about two miles distant from the San Bernardino Courthouse.

The plain grows as fine oranges as the world has ever seen and the finest quality of citrus fruit generally, as buyers can see for themselves. There is no better raisin grape land in California. In fact all sub-tropical productions flourish to perfection.

The Mirror Premium Sewing-Machine.

$25.50—FOR A—$75.00

High-Arm Sewing-Machine!

—AND THE—

WEEKLY MIRROR.

[The machines described below are now kept on hand at the Times-Mirror office, and persons can be supplied on short notice, without having to wait until they are shipped from Chicago. The freight is included in the charge below named, from Chicago to Los Angeles. Persons ordering machines from this office will pay the extra freight to their destination.]

F. T. $25.50 this machine and WEEKLY MIRROR, postage paid, for one year.

This machine is the first of its kind ever offered the public at factory prices, and cannot be bought from agents for less than the regular selling price, $75. It is the high-arm pattern, has self-setting needle; cannot be run backward; has automatic cut-off for driving belt, which prevents it from being run backward, thus avoiding all dangers of breaking thread or needles. It is a noiseless, light-running machine, accompanied by an illustrated book of instructions that makes everything so plain and simple that any lady or child can master it. We call it the MIRROR HIGH-ARM SEWING MACHINE, and we warrant it to give full and entire satisfaction in every case, or it may be returned to us within ten days after the subscriber has received the same, if it fails to be as represented, at our expense, and the money will be refunded.

Knowing the character of the machine and the high grade of material and workmanship entering into its construction, we have no hesitation in agreeing to return the money at once to any subscriber who is not fully satisfied on examination that our high-arm machine is fully equal to our representations, we paying freight on return of the machine.

CAUTION—Sewing machine agents will tell you, "Beware of Cheap machines." We tell you buy the high-arm machine on trial, and if not satisfactory return it. No agent can sell you its equal for less than $75. Each part of the machine is fitted with such exactness that no trouble can arise if any part is broken, for a new piece can be supplied with an assurance of a perfect fit.

OUTFIT—Each machine is supplied with the following outfit: One Hemmer and Feller (one piece), Twelve Needles, Six Bobbins, One Wrench, One Quilting Gauge, One Screw Driver, Oil Can filled with Oil, Cloth Gauge and Thumb-screw and a Book of Directions. The following extra attachments are also furnished free: Ruffler, Tucker, Binder, Set of Wide Hemmers and Shirring Plate.

Give shipping directions plainly, as well as the postoffice address the paper is to be sent to.

Having arranged with the manufacturers to supply us with these machines in large quantities for spot cash at or very near first cost, we can save our subscribers at least $35 on the price of each machine. As this is the first time a sewing machine of this character has been offered the public at about manufacturer's cost, we feel confident our readers will promptly take advantage of this opportunity to provide themselves with first-class high-arm machines, which obtained in any other way would cost them almost three times the amount.

We could fill several columns expatiating on the merits of this high-arm machine, but to save the reader's patience we will simply say that it contains all the modern improvements, is strong, simple, durable, light-running and noiseless.

☞ The LOS ANGELES DAILY TIMES—Any person desiring the Daily and this Sewing Machine can have the same by mail for $32.50, they paying the freight from this office to their destination.

HOW TO ORDER.

When you remit us the $25.50 for the Machine and WEEKLY MIRROR one year, write plainly the point the machine is to be shipped to, as well as the postoffice the paper is to be sent to. The machine should be ordered to the nearest railroad point where the railroad company an agent stationed, and the name of railroad station, the county and State should be stated. When $25.50 is sent for the WEEKLY MIRROR one year and the machine, the freight charges from Los Angeles are to be paid by the subscriber at the point the Machine is delivered to.

It runs lightly and with very little noise and performs to perfection all kinds of sewing work with the exception of buttons. Very truly yours, WM. P. WADE.

"TRIED 'EM ALL, AND LIKES THE MIRROR MACHINE BEST."

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 29, 1886.

Times-Mirror Company: My wife tried several $75 machines, and chose the Mirror Premium Sewing-Machine as an equal to the best in the market, for one-fourth of the money. It is perfect in all particulars, and admired by all who see it. My wife has been using it several months, and we both cheerfully recommend it to the public, as represented. WM. L. PRICE, 218 Temple Street.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 21, 1886.

"SUPERIOR IN SOME RESPECTS TO THE BEST.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 20, 1886.

Times-Mirror Company: My wife and daughter are well pleased with your Times Mirror Sewing-Machine. They have used several of the best makes of machines and yet say your machine is superior in some respects to those they have used, and in no way inferior. They were at first afraid, as many are, no doubt, that it is too cheap to be first-class, but are now satisfied that it is as good as machines costing three or four times as much. Yours truly,

S. A. MATTISON.

"TIGHTENED THE SCREW AND SHE RUNS ALL RIGHT."

NEWHALL, Cal., Nov. 8, 1886.

Times-Mirror Company: Yours of the 1st inst. received. Will say in reply that, soon after I wrote you I discovered the cause of the trouble. The little tension screw in the shuttle had worked loose and was nearly out, and the shuttle thread, in sewing fast, would catch on the screw and break. I tightened the screw and it now works like a charm; no more breaking thread or irregularity of stitch. Very respectfully, L. A. MYERS.

"ONE OF THE BEST INVESTMENTS THEY EVER MADE."

ORANGE, Cal., Oct. 23, 1886.

Times-Mirror Company: We received our High-Armed Sewing-Machine in good order, and I am very much pleased with it, and consider it one of the best investments we ever made. It is nicely finished, and runs strong and light, doing nice work. Any one needing a good machine I do not think can do better than invest $22 in the machine and MIRROR. Respectfully yours,

MRS. U. L. SHAFFER.

"MORE THAN SATISFIED AND GLADLY RECOMMENDS IT."

ORANGE, Cal., Oct. 22, 1886.

Times-Mirrors Company: I thank you for sending to us for testimonials, as I have sat my new machine in the parlor, without even threading it, as I was very busy and had a good machine ready for work and used to running. So I did not take time to do anything with the new one until I received your letter. Then I brought mine and went to running it to test it. I was more than satisfied, and gladly recomend it to those in need of a machine. I think I would have gained time to have used it long ago. Our little girl wants to write a letter to Mrs. Otis for the children's column. So if it is not worthy of a place there, just drop it in the waste-basket please. As ever,

MARTHA M. SHAFFER.

"EQUAL TO ANY $65 MACHINE."

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 19, 1886.

MRS. A. W. WOHM,

Corner Oak and Ocean, Los Angeles.
